

NANCY KENDALL

"Research and Practice in International Education: Examining the Effects of Global Policies on Educational Experiences in Malawi & Mozambique"

Tuesday November 6, 2007
3:00-4:00 PM
220 Teacher Ed Building

Light Refreshments Served

Nancy Kendall, Assistant Professor of Educational Policy Studies, will discuss her current research in Malawi and Mozambique, which examines the interactions of global policy frameworks (such as education for all, political democratization, neoliberal economic reform, and HIV/AIDS policies).

She will also discuss some of the issues that may arise for graduate students interested in conducting ethnographic research on official policies, and particularly for students interested in conducting policy research internationally.